

Briefing Paper No 16 Building Safer Communities Programme Project A – Supporting Better Practice

1 Introduction

- 1.1 The Building Safer Communities Programme is made up by five projects which cover supporting better practice, promoting community assets, improving data sharing, delivering education initiatives and building robust evidence. Together these projects will facilitate better engagement and outcomes for communities.
- 1.2 The Supporting Better Practice Project is the first of these projects; a project that, in light of the amount of change and reform taking place throughout Scotland, aims to take forward reform by assisting Community Planning Partnerships (CPP) to deliver transformational change around the four pillars of public service reform (prevention, partnership, people and performance).
- 1.3 The project will provide CPPs in Scotland with training and guidance on how to make communities safer and stronger. Additional support will also be available to a small number of CPPs tackling specific issues. This will look to promote innovative approaches and new pioneering methods such as the Total Neighbourhood Scheme established by The City of Edinburgh Council.
- 1.4 The scrutiny and engagement aspects of the programme are still in their early days and the programme is currently looking to provide support and facilitate shared learning and development to ensure that the early aims of the project are realised.
- 1.5 As a result the current work with partnerships, the safer and stronger communities' initiative is now considered to be a priority for Single Outcome Agreements across Scotland, which the programme acknowledges will be essential in promoting more strategic direction and support for later projects in the programme.
